

LAZY GRAMOPHONE

A New Home for Britain's Most Promising Writers & Artists

Advocating the importance of intimacy and civility within artistic expression, Lazy Gramophone would like to turn people's attentions back toward the bare bones of creativity by helping to support and showcase some of Britain's most exciting up-and-coming talent.

Lazy Gramophone is a London-based collection of innovative souls from across the creative spectrum. The website is designed to help bring artists together both electronically and physically, while offering artistic treats for the eyes, ears and mind. At their core, Lazy Gramophone is a group of like-minded creative folk, fascinated and enthralled by the act of artistic creation. They believe wholeheartedly in collaboration and aspire to provide a support platform for developing writers and artists in order to help them gain exposure and showcase their work.

Decorated in rolling images, snapshots of the collective's latest works, icons and news updates, www.lazygramophone.com offers an instant impression of what to expect from the rest of the site. You will find artists and writers of all shapes and sizes with talents from all four corners of the metaverse. Whether perusing the shop, checking up on the collective's latest news and live events, exploring the featured artists' profiles or investigating their journals, you'll see that Lazy Gramophone's aims remain simple: to bring people together while offering up as much exciting new work as possible.

"I love Lazy Gramophone, you're doing terrific work." Terri Windling

"A handsomely produced book (The Book of Apertures)." Philip Pullman

www.lazygramophone.com

visit: www.lazygramophone.com/lgpk for our full press pack

Sam Rawlings

sam@lazygramophone.com

07870 687 649

flickr

Tube

art
below